MULTIPLE CHOICE QUESTION ON WHY EMPLOYABILITY IS IMPORTANT

Why is the employability of graduates important to employers?

Note: there may be more than one correct option.

a. For a return on their investment in hiring and training new graduates
b. So graduates can work for a top tier firm
c. To find people who can add value to their organisation
d. To make recruitment processes easier
e. To make a degree worthwhile

FEEDBACK:
The correct answers are (a) and (c). Employers invest a lot of money in graduates so they are looking for a return on that investment by hiring the right people who can add value to their organisation.

While an employable graduate will stand out in the recruitment process, employers will still need to go through the process of selecting the right person.

Answers (b) and (e) are reasons why graduates might value their employability, not employers.
