Public Seminar
Adjunct Professor Tony Attwood
Associate Professor Kate Sofronoff
Thursday 17 November

MANAGING STUDENT BEHAVIOURS YOU DON’T UNDERSTAND

Has your class ever been ‘hijacked’ by a student with challenging behaviours?
Want practical strategies for dealing with difficult classroom situations?
Using experiences drawn directly from the audience, this interactive workshop will identify challenging student behaviours commonly experienced in tertiary settings and demonstrate a range of practical strategies to manage these behaviours.

Date: Thursday 17 November 2016
Time: 9am - 12pm
Venue: Room 208, General Purpose North 3 (Building 39A)
The University of Queensland, St Lucia, Brisbane

Register: HERE

ADJUNCT PROFESSOR TONY ATTWOOD
Adjunct Professor Tony Attwood is a clinical psychologist and world expert on autism spectrum conditions. He has a PhD in clinical psychology (University of London) and is highly regarded on the international speaker circuit. Tony’s book Asperger’s Syndrome – A Guide for Parents and Professionals has sold over 350,000 copies and has been translated into 25 languages. Tony has developed programs to help young people with anxiety, anger management and depression.

ASSOC. PROFESSOR KATE SOFRONOFF
Assoc. Professor Kate Sofronoff is a clinical psychologist and Head of Disability Research, Parenting and Family Support Centre in the School of Psychology UQ. Kate is also a project leader with the Autism Cooperative Research Centre (ACRC). Kate’s main area of research is in developing and evaluating programs to assist children, adolescents and adults with autism spectrum conditions. Recently, Kate has been working with the Engineering, Architecture and Information Technology Faculty to develop resources for staff and students focusing on the management of challenging student behaviours.